GERMANY AGREES TO NOT USE GAS

Route 22 Will Be Opened For Pumpkin Show

THREE-FOURTHS OF WORK DONE WEST OF CITY

Contractor To Halt Operation And Permit Traffic During Festival

BUILDING BEATS SCHEDULE

Only 145 Of 280 Days Alloted For Construction Have Been Utilized

With the reconstruction of Route 22, west of Circleville, starting into the home stretch, officials of the Lewis & Frisinger Co., contractors on the $300,000 project, announced Thursday that the highway would be opened "definitely" for the Pumpkin Show visitors during the week of the big festival, Oct. 18, 19, 20 and 21.

All work on the highway will be stopped that week, John Frisinger, of the contracting firm, declared. "It would be too dangerous to maintain a crew along the highway in the face of the amount of traffic that will be traveling into and out of Circleville. We will shut down during the four days of the festival."

Ahead of Schedule

Frisinger said that the project is about three-fourths completed although the company still has about half of the working days allotted it remaining. The state's contract calls for 280 working days. Only 145 have been consumed, Frisinger said.

The last of 21 concrete slab units has been poured and hand railings are being constructed on two of the three bridge sections. The last slab was poured this week, but hand railing of it cannot start for 15 days, because the state insists that concrete be permitted to cure for that length of time before holes may be drilled for the hand railing. Motor traffic is not permitted on the concrete in less than 28 days after it is poured.

Some Restrictions

The contracting official said Thursday that even if traffic is not permitted on the last of the three big sections that the old road could be used to carry traffic on the middle section and the one nearest the bridge.

Automobiles would be kept off

CHICAGO, Sept. 14 — Ada Leonard, who removes clothes for a living, generally in night clubs, told police today about a thief who was one up on her.

The thief broke into her flat, she said, and stole several dresses. He also took two fur pieces and a radio.

"I usually get paid for taking my clothes off," quipped the shapely entertainer, "but here I am asking the police to get my things back."

Europe Tense as Russia Masses Army on Border

WITH details of the Russo-German pact being kept secret, Soviet's mighty army mobilizing and Red soldiers massing on the Polish border, Allied leaders fear Russia may have been promised a share of Poland and is preparing to help the invading Nazis. The Polish Ukraine, rich in grain and oil, once belonged to Russia, as did Esthonia and Latvia. Rumania, fearful Stalin has designs on her, has called a million men to the colors. Another possibility, observers point out, is that Russia, watching Hitler's rapid advance in Poland, has decided independently to grab a share of the booty. Some of the Soviet's massed manpower is shown (top), its heavy artillery at bottom.

BURGLARY LAID TO EX-CONVICT

Charges Preferred Against Man Shot Down In Flight By Police

Charges of forcibly breaking and entering the John W. Eshelman and Sons Milling Co. and of possessing tools with which he intended to burglarize the office of the firm, were filed Thursday in Mayor W. B. Cady's court against Felix Frank Jachim, 32, an ex-convict of Youngsotwn.

Jachim is under guard in Berger Hospital after being shot in the left leg by Patrolman Charles Mumaw when the burglary suspect leaped through a window of the Eshelman office late Saturday night. While police are not concerned about Jachim's attempting to escape they fear that persons who were believed to be with him in the burglary attempt may try to take him from the hospital.

One of the charges was sworn out by Patrolman Mumaw and the other by Patrolman Alva Shasteen. Mayor Cady planned to arraign Jachim in the hospital later in the day.

Chief W. F. McCrady declared Thursday that Jachim is regarded in northern Ohio as "one tough hombre." Railroad Detectives A. C. Fasolas of Cleveland D. S. Benson of Akron were in Circleville Wednesday questioning Jachim, but they might as well have grilled the hospital bed instead of the man who is in it. The Youngstown prisoner refused to talk concerning his activities in the last several months. He has been arrested three times in Akron and Cleveland since March for investigation and as a suspicious person. The detectives say there is a safecracking charge against him in Ravenna.

McCrady said that Jachim has a criminal record dating back to 1922 when he was sent to a Pennsylvania prison for 10 years after

GDYNIA, POLAND'S ONLY SEA LINK WITH WORLD, FALLS

White Flag Goes Aloft As Army And Battleship Pound Defenses

BERLIN, Sept. 14—The rich seaport of Gdynia, Poland's greatest harbor and only maritime link with the rest of the world, surrendered and passed into German hands today.

An official announcement in Berlin stated that the Polish commander in Gdynia, who for two weeks had held out against a German onslaught by land, sea and air, surrendered to General Eberhard, German commander-in-chief, at 8:10 A. M.

The city was occupied immediately by detachments of the German army.

As German war planes roared overhead and the guns on the cade ship Schleswig Holstein were unlimbered for another day of ceaseless pounding at the city's defenses, a white flag went aloft from the Polish headquarters.

The order to "cease fire" was given, and a few minutes later the Polish commander, flanked by members of his staff, came out into the open and informed General Eberhard that Gdynia had surrendered.

The German commander demanded a hundred hostages, including the mayor of the city, as a guarantee that the terms of surrender would be respected. The Poles agreed and German troops immediately marched into the city.

An authoritative Berlin source stated that the occupational troops "found many armed civilians."

Gdynia was in many ways the richest prize yet to fall to Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler in his conquest of Poland.

The city, originally a sparsely inhabited fishing port on Danzig bay a few miles north of Zoppot, had been developed by the Poles

NEW YORK, Sept. 14 — Joint rescue by a non-belligerent vessel and an airplane of the crew of another British freighter torpedoed in the Irish Sea was revealed today in a laconic radio message flashed to New York by Capt. Harry Manning, skipper of the U. S. Lines passenger liner President Roosevelt.

The torpedoed craft, the Brigh Freighter Vancouver City, first flashed an S. O. S. at 6:15 a. m. (EDT) today, giving her position as about 100 miles southeast of Cobh, Ireland. The message ended with this plea:

"Taking to boats. Come rescue."

At 9:45 A. M. (EDT), Captain Manning advised his New York office that he was racing to the aid of the stricken crew, then floating around in lifeboats about 52 miles away. A few minutes later he sent another radio telling of the combined ship-and-plane rescue.

POPE CONTINUES PRAYER, EFFORT AIMED AT PEACE

VATICAN CITY, Sept. 14—Pope Pius today said he continues working actively as well as praying for peace, but if war must go on, he will strive to minimize its horrors.

Receiving the new Belgian ambassador at Castel Gandolfo, the Pope said:

"We shall continue to work for peace as long as it is possible. Then we shall work to alleviate the sadness of war, seeking humane treatment of prisoners, protection of civilians, and non-use of poisonous gases.

"The Pope continues to pray to God to open a new way toward peace before the conflict spreads.

"We take every occasion to seek conclusion of a peace agreeable to all."

ENTHUSIASM OF YOUTH SEEN AS THREAT TO PEACE

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. Sept. 14 — Americans were warned today by Stephen J. Chadwick, national commander of the American Legion, not to permit themselves to be swept into the European war by the enthusiasm of their youth.

Pointing to reports of talk of the formation of ambulance units by American young men, Chadwick warned the United Spanish war veterans this was one of the steps that embroiled the United States in the last war.

"The only hope we have of imposing our ideals and system of government on the rest of the world is by setting a successful example for them," Chadwick declared. "We still face the job of performing this demonstration and we are not doing so good a job of it when 10,000,000 of our workers remain unemployed."

Judge George E. Eberly of the Nebraska state supreme court was slated for election as national commander.

Congress May Be Kept In Session During Period Of Limited Emergency

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14 — In the face of administration claims that congress is ready to lift the neutrality act arms embargo on shipment of arms to warring nations, senate foes of the proposal today mapped a program of delay through exhaustive debate.

Their program also included a drive to keep congress continuously in session, once it has met in special session on September 21 in response to President Roosevelt's call.

Insisting that there will be no filibuster, supporters of the neutrality act conceded that their best chance of beating the administration program is to bring the issues directly into the homes of voters throughout the country.

Borah on Radio

Senator Borah (R) Idaho, leader of the newly-formed peace bloc, planned to appeal to the nation over the radio tonight to avoid the possibility of America being dragged into war through sale of arms to Great Britain and France.

"I am glad the special session was called," said Borah. "Congress will have work enough to keep it here continuously. Whether it desires to stay or not is another question."

Senator Clark (D) Missouri, urged that congress remain in session for the period of the limited emergency proclaimed by the president.

"The neutrality act was resigned for just such situations as we face and which was described by President Roosevelt in his Chautauqua, N. Y., speech in which he defended the act," said Clark.

Senator Thomas (D) Utah, member of the foreign relations committee, predicted that the committee will report favorably the administration program for repeal of the arms embargo by a vote of at least 15 to 8. The same committee voted postponement of consideration of embargo repeal, 12 to 11, in the regular session.

Quick Action Expected

"I expect, comparatively speaking, rather quick action by congress," said Thomas. "Of course the filibuster still works and a dozen men can delay a vote a long time."

He expects the president to lay before congress a definite pattern for revision of the neutrality act.

While Senator Pepper (D) Florida, said that "I assume the president has the votes," Senator Murray (D) Montana, said that the fact that war has broken out in Europe changes the situation.

RUSS TROOPS SOON TO ENTER ARENA, IS REPORT FROM BERLIN

BERLIN, Sept. 14—An understanding has been reached between Germany and Soviet Russia whereby Russians will occupy Eastern Poland shortly, it was reported on reliable authority in Berlin today.

The occupation may be effected before German troops have even reached Eastern Poland, it was reported. If German forces have taken the area before the agreement is put into effect, it was reported, they will withdraw and hand the territory over to the Russians.

The plan appeared to call for eventual creation of some sort of a central Polish state as a "buffer" between Germany and the U. S. S. R.

FOREIGN PLANES BARRED FROM CANAL ZONE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14—President Roosevelt today barred all foreign aircraft from the Panama Canal zone, except where specially authorized by Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

In one of the most stringent regulations since the outbreak of the Euorpean war, the chief executive set apart a zone to be known as a "military air space reservation."

The regulation bars operation of all aircraft, both foreign and domestic, except under special authorization for specific flights.

American military and naval aviation, of course, is exempted.

The action was taken in a presidential executive order.

STOCKS CLIMB AS NEW BUYING ERASES LOSSES

NEW YORK, Sept. 14 — The stock market rallied today as new buying quickly wiped out early losses running to more than two points and substituted gains of as much.

The chemical shares came up easily, with Allied rising more than two points. Other issues to gain as much included Western Union and International Harvester.

REENFORCEMENTS RUSHED

Great Armies Locked In Desperate Battle Near City Of Saarbrucken

LONDON, Sept. 14—The German government today promised to abstain from use of poison gas and the spreading of bacteria for the duration of the war if her enemies do likewise, while Great Britain pledged herself to humanized warfare insofar as is possible.

The German pledge was revealed in the House of Lords by Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax, while in the House of Commons Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain again warned the Reich that aerial bombing of open towns in Poland or elsewhere would meet with stern reprisals.

"Whatever length the others may go to," he added, however, "his majesty's government will never resort to deliberate attack upon women, children and other civilians for the purpose of mere terrorism."

Pledge Revealed

"In the meantime, it must be remembered that our strategy and tactics must at all stages be governed by one consideration — namely, effective prosecution of war.

"If German action of the kind suggested is taken, it will inevitably further strengthen the resolves of ourselves and our allies to prosecute the war and ensure that the menace we are fighting is finally removed."

Hitler's pledge to refrain from poison gas and disease germs was revealed by Lord Halifax as follows:

"Germany has notified his majesty's government that she will observe for the duration of the war the prohibitions concerning the use of poison gas and bacteria laid down in the Geneva protocol of June, 1925, but reserving full liberty of action in the event of its provisions infringed by Germany's enemies."

Desperate Effort Made To Stem Relentless Drive On German Soil

REENFORCEMENTS RUSHED

Great Armies Locked In Desperate Battle Near City Of Saarbrucken

LONDON, Sept. 14—The German government today promised to abstain from use of poison gas and the spreading of bacteria for the duration of the war if her enemies do likewise, while Great Britain pledged herself to humanized warfare insofar as is possible.

The German pledge was revealed in the House of Lords by Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax, while in the House of Commons Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain again warned the Reich that aerial bombing of open towns in Poland or elsewhere would meet with stern reprisals.

"Whatever length the others may go to," he added, however, "his majesty's government will never resort to deliberate attack upon women, children and other civilians for the purpose of mere terrorism."

Pledge Revealed

"In the meantime, it must be remembered that our strategy and tactics must at all stages be governed by one consideration — namely, effective prosecution of war.

"If German action of the kind suggested is taken, it will inevitably further strengthen the resolves of ourselves and our allies to prosecute the war and ensure that the menace we are fighting is finally removed."

Hitler's pledge to refrain from poison gas and disease germs was revealed by Lord Halifax as follows:

"Germany has notified his majesty's government that she will observe for the duration of the war the prohibitions concerning the use of poison gas and bacteria laid down in the Geneva protocol of June, 1925, but reserving full liberty of action in the event of its provisions infringed by Germany's enemies."

ENGLAND HAS ANOTHER AIRPLANE RAID SCARE

SOUTHEND, Eng., Sept. 14 — An air raid warning, the first of this week, sent the population of Southend on England's Essex Coast rushing to bomb-proof shelters this afternoon.

The "all clear" signal was given twenty minutes later.

The population took refuge in an orderly manner and there was no panic.

RAIL BUSINESS MAKES ADVANCE IN CIRCLEVILLE

Local Freight Business In August 30 Percent Above Last Year

N. & W. ADDS EMPLOYES

Heavy Commodity Trading And War Scare Help Boost Traffic

Railroad business in Circleville is booming with freight movements far ahead of last year. Officials of lines that pass through Circleville say that operations have been "stepped up" and that their companies are very optimistic about the outlook for the remainder of the fall and winter seasons.

The Norfolk & Western, busiest of the three lines that traverse Pickaway County, reports local freight in August 30 percent above July and 40 percent above August, 1938.

One official said that "everything is up."

Coal Moving Rapidly

Coal, one of the big N. & W. factors, has been moving heavily through the county. Because of the coal tieup during the long strike the lines of the Norfolk & Western have been taxed to the limit during the last few months.

The largest shipments from Pickaway County include grain and milling company products.

Because Circleville does not have a rail terminal employment figures do not cut such a figure here as they do in other Central Ohio cities, but six men have been added by the N. & W. in the last two months. Each of the three section gangs that operates out of Circleville has been bolstered by addition of two men. Because of the heavy traffic, road maintenance men naturally have heavier tasks.

Pennsy Active

The Pennsylvania railroad, which handles much of the Eshelman Milling Co. products, is "far ahead of last year," Earl Hilyard, agent, said. "However, the milling company fire will cut down our traffic for the next few days."

Rail men generally believe that commodity trading, with the European war scare boosting business, is helping the railroads, too. The freight boost is due mainly though to the seasonal demand and that industries are building up reserves that were depleted during the bituminous shutdown.

There is no way to obtain a check of business on the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad since it has no station in Pickaway County, but railroad men declare that it is getting its share of the business increase. Long trains hauling coal may be seen at almost anytime on the C. & O. tracks west of Circleville.

BURNS FATAL TO CHILLICOTHE ROAD WORKER

Eugene Howard, 24, of Chillicothe, died Wednesday in Chillicothe hospital of burns he received a day earlier in a highway project accident near Hallsville, Ross County. Howard was employed by Brewer and Brewer Sons, Inc., of Chillicothe.

He was working on a road resurfacing project and was apparently attempting to refuel a tractor when the engine was still running. He suffered second and third degree burns on his entire body.

Mr. Howard was a native of Chillicothe, born Nov. 6, 1914. He is survived by his wife, his mother, two grandmothers, three sisters and one brother.

The funeral will be Friday at 10 A. M. in the M. J. Grohe funeral home, Chillicothe, with burial in Greenlawn cemetery.

PETTENGILL

"The Gentleman from Indiana"

WHO IS TEACHING YOUR CHILD?

Twenty-seven million boys and girls have now returned to public school. They are taught by 850,000 teachers. The buildings they occupy cost the taxpayers nearly 7 billion dollars of which 3 billion is still owing. The annual cost of operating this vast plant, including the payment of teachers, is about 2 billion.

Since the days of Horace Mann our public school system has been one of the things of which we have been most proud. Under it, greater advantages, at greater cost, are given to more children than in any nation in the world. For example, for every 50 inhabitants we have registered in primary and high schools 12 children; Germany eight; Italy eight; Russia 7.

PETTENGILL

If you were living in Germany, the State would be your child's teacher. "Who has the youth holds the future of Germany." The State has the youth. That is basic. Without it the totalitarian state is unthinkable. Religious instruction has been taken from ecclesiastical authorities. There is racial discrimination. Science is no longer taught for the sake of science, but for the sake of the State and its Nazi doctrines. College professors are no longer responsible to their alma maters, but to the State, which is Hitler.

In Italy all teachers who refused to swear allegiance to the Fascist regime were discharged. This would be comparable, with us, to the hiring of New Dealers. Teachers in all Italian schools, men and women, have been ordered to wear uniforms. The Sons of the Wolf is a semi-military organization for boys between 6 and 8 years of age. The hand that rocks the cradle is the hand that rules the Black Shirts.

In Russia, illiteracy has been greatly reduced. But the more who can read, the greater the indoctrination of Communist ideology, "the materialist - international world outlook". In all these countries the child is the pawn of the State, which is the politicians in power. There is no such thing as objective Truth. Truth is what serves the State. The idea is that as we have factories to manufacture pins, let us have factories (schools) to manufacture opinions. Opinions or pins-what's the difference? Such is the brutal materialism which moulds the minds of the cannon fodder of the new Caesars.

A new danger confronts us at home. It is the drive fora huge increase in federal aid to education. When we see what is happening abroad where civilization totters on the will and shim of one-man rule, we may well weigh the price. Can any alleged gains to the pupils in "backward" States compensate for the dangers inherent in this plan to the pupils of all States, and to the nation itself?

From the book, "Our Country, Our People and Theirs", which I wish were in every school library in America, I quote: "Not being subject to national control, the American educational system is virtually free from the risk of domination by political objectives on a nation-wide scale." Let us keep it so.

I am sorry to report that this drive for more billions is being supported by many of our teachers. They figure that they can get more money. Now itis admitted get more money. Now it is admitted enough. But on the whole our teachers have come through this long depression as well as any other group in the country. Some interesting figures have just been released by the Department of Commerce.

In percent of 1929 figures, payrolls in 1938 in building were only 44; in agriculture, 59; manufacturing, durable goods, 63; mining 64; transportation 70; retail trade 72; etc., etc. The only payrolls in 1938 which were greater than in 1938 were "the payroll brigade" working for goverment, —local, State and national—and teachers!

It seems, therefore, that with millions of their fellow citizens still struggling to keep going, with the national debt increasing $3 billions a year, now for the 10th consecutive year, with the savings of thrifty people melting slowly away, and with God knows what expenditures may be forced upon us for national defense, that it is only cricket for our teachers, tehir organizations and lobbies, to defer further demands upon the public purse until a more convenient season. And with that I think every father and mother has the right to ask if his child's teacher endorses the program recently adopted at Buffalo by the American Federation of Teachers, which, according to last week's Satevepost, has a fellow-traveler with Communists at its head.

Questions And Answers Of Social Security Act

Editor's Note:
This is the third in a series of questions and answers relative to the amended Social Security Act. Individual questions concerning this subject should be addressed to C. C. Darby, manager of the Social Security Board field office in Columbus.

QUESTION: What is the affect of the new social security legislation on workers who are now 65 or who are approaching that age?

ANSWER: It is now possible for such persons to qualify for monthly old age insurance benefits starting January 1, 1940.

QUESTION: As an example, a man working throughout 1937 reached age 65 in January, 1938, and received a lump-sum money payment to which he was then entitled under the original plan of old age insurance. However, he continued to work at $75 a month. Can he now qualify for monthly benefits?

ANSWER: Yes. Wages earned on covered employment after December 31, 1936, and before a person became 65, now count toward monthly benefits, regardless of the payment of a lump sum. After January 1, 1939, employment after age 65 also counts toward benefits. Although the worker in this case would not get credit for the wages he earned during the year between his 65th birthday and January 1, 1939, he would still have enough wage credits to get a monthly benefit January 1, 1940, provided he retired.

QUESTION: In case a man who has received a lump-sum payment qualifies for monthly benefits, what adjustment will be made with respect to the money he has already received?

ANSWER: The amount of the lump-sum payment will be deducted from his monthly benefits. This is a matter of regulation to be made by the Bureau of Old-Age Insurance of the Social Security Board.

QUESTION: A man earning $40 a month became 65 in April, 1938, and received a lump-sum payment. Then he stopped work. But if he goes back to work in January, 1940, can he get monthly benefits?

ANSWER: Yes. With the wage credits earned before he quit work in 1938 he will, if goes back to work, have enough credits to get a monthly benefit before the end of 1940. But the lump-sum he received in 1938 would be deducted from his monthly benefits.

QUESTION: Must a worker over 65 retire in order to receive monthly benefits?

ANSWER: Yes. But under the revised law his 65th birthday does not necessarily end his participation in the insurance plan. He will continue to accumulate wage credits as long as he works in a job covered by the plan, no matter how old he is.

QUESTION: May a person receiving the monthly benefits return to this job at any time?

ANSWER: He may, but he will not receive monthly payments for the months he works in employment covered by the plan and in which months he earns more than $15.00.

Another set of questions and answers will appear in an early issue.

FLIP OF COIN DECIDED CAREER FOR BAUGHAM

New Director Of Finance Won First Office By Tossing Silver

LUCKY IN ELECTIONS

Wilmington Man Is Firm Believer In Economy With Public's Cash

COLUMBUS, Sept. 14—The flip of a coin started husky, ruddy-faced Rob Roy "Bob" Bangham on the political career that swept him into a $6,500-a-year-job—that of state finance director.

Sitting in his new statehouse office, the jovial youthful-looking furniture store proprietor from Wilmington recalled events that started him on the road to political recognition nine years ago.

"Because of a local controversy, some friends asked me to run for Republican central committeeman in Clinton County," Bangham explained. "When the votes were counted, my opponent and I were tied. So we settled it by flipping a coin, and I won. I think I called 'heads.'"

Goes To Assembly

He had little trouble later in getting elected to the general assembly as a Republican representative. His outstanding work as general chairman of the House finance committee in the 93rd assembly caused Governor Bricker to name him recently to the cabinet post.

An ardent supporter of the chief executive, Bangham is a firm believer in economy where public funds are concerned. And he is proud of the biennial budget passed during the last session of the legislature.

"The present budget was set up so the state could live within its income," Bangham said. "We'll have to see an actual need before we spend more money. We may have to tighten our belts a little, but we're going to carry out our economy program."

No Time For Sports

Although he has the physique of a football player, Bangham contends he never has had time for sports of any kind. He avoided athletic activity when he attended Ohio State University.

Bangham was born in Wilmington in 1899 and was graduated from the high school there in 1917. He attended Wilmington college for a year before going to Ohio State, where he studied business administration.

After being graduated in 1922, he accepted a job as a salesman with a Chicago firm, and was on the road until his father, L. G. Bangham, died in 1929. He then returned to Wilmington and assumed his father's duties in the Bangham & Gallimore furniture store.

Pleased By Job

He was married in 1931 to Martha Bailey, of Middletown. They have no children and live in the home in which Bangham was born. His mother lives with them. Although they plan on maintaining their Wilmington home, the new director and his wife also will maintain an apartment in Columbus.

Bangham is enthusiastic about his new job. He spoke highly of the ability Defenbacher, of Dover, budget director who acted as director of finance until the legislator was named to the post.

"Yes sir," he said "I think this administration is giving the people what they really want—economy in government."

APPEALS COURT IS TO DECIDE SCHOOL CONTEST

The Muhlenberg Township Rural School District fight with the county board of education over transfer of Darbyville community high school pupils to the Monroe Township School had moved to the court of appeals Thursday after Judge Meeker Terwilliger filed an entry upholding the county board in its transfer decree.

The Muhlenberg High School has been ordered closed because of small enrollment, the state department of education refusing to renew its first class charter. The Muhlenberg pupils were ordered taken to Monroe with grade pupils continuing to attend the Darbyville building. Muhlenberg's board of education took exceptions to this decree and entered into a court controversy.

Judge Terwilliger's decree sustained a demurrer filed by the county board against an injunction suit opposing the transfer brought by the Muhlenberg district. He declared the transfer of territory to the Monroe board valid.

In the meantime, Muhlenberg parents are continuing to send their children to whatever school they wish.

C. A. Leist, one of the attorneys for the Muhlenberg group, said that the court of appeals decision, whichever way it turned, would establish law in the state concerning the question of school attendance. He said that there is no precedent to follow at the present time.

'Blondie' at Cliftona

IT'S ARTHUR LAKE as "Dagwood," Penny Singleton as "Blondie," Larry Simms as "Baby Dumpling," and Daisy, their dog, as they appear in Columbia's "Blondie Takes a Vacation," which starts Friday at the Cliftona Theatre. This time the Chic Young comic strip family go away on a vacation, but instead of relaxation they plunge right into the most exciting adventures of their lives.

whose soldiers used to sass the General if they found him asleep, and he sassed back at them.

"That was a democratic army," says Hershey, "not as efficient as a Prussianized machine, but it sticks to the end because it knows what it's fighting for."

This leads the Major into a discussion of fear complexes. He would rather talk of soldier psychology than of the glass bowl and pellets he has in readiness for the giant lottery of the draft—when the numbers drawn will determine which mothers' sons shall go to war.

Ten million will be called first—all the men between 21 and 30, and from them, after "deferring" about seven million, three million will be taken for service. This should be enough to make a powerful army, but if it isn't, other age groups will be called until a total of 7,500,000 men are in uniform.

"Fear," says Hershey, "is what breaks a man's morale, and fear comes from not knowing what the objective is. In this country, the people make up their minds to do something, then the Army takes over the job. Everybody knows the objective. It's a slow process—a democratic process—but it creates strong morale.

"Of course, we don't pretend that young men want to be drafted. Nobody wants to get blown to pieces in a war. But the force that makes them go is not the military authority, it's the force of public opinion. A young man can't dodge without losing face in the community."

If Hershey has his way, there will be no draft, because there will be no war, for America. "I'm a Hoosier and an isolationist," he says, "and I believe we should keep out of other people's troubles. But if we do have to get in ----"

The upstanding red hair, in a quick shake, suggests that America's democratic army will be unbeatable.

GERMAN REFUGEES

What some Germans think of Hitler's policies at home may be gathered from the fact that 302,000 Gerans are on the waiting list to migrate to the United States. These people, some still in Germany, others scattered all over Europe, are waiting hopefully, patiently for their names to move up on the list, to get the coveted visa and sail to the Statue of Liberty.

For some of them the waiting period will be 12 years. The annual quota for German immigration is 27,370, or about one-twelfth of the 302,000 who are formally registered on U. S. books abroad.

This is a new situation. Two years ago any healthy German could be admitted to the United States without delay. For years the German quota has been unfilled. People didn't want to come here.

But with the Hitler anschluss with Austria in March 1938, Germans—many of them Jews, many also Catholics—began to storm U. S. consulates in Central Europe, eager to leave the expanding Fatherland.

In the fiscal year 1938-39 the Germans filled their quota for the first time. Now they wish the quotas could be retroactive, so they could take up the slack of those years when Uncle Sam had his arms open. But now there is a bill on the Senate calendar to suspend all immigration quotas.

Even worse than the German situation is the Hungarian, with a quota of only 800 a year. The number of Hungarians who have applied for admission to the United States is 30,000, enough to fill their quota for the next 37 years.

Note—Most disappointed are 650 Germans in London, who had the land of liberty almost within their grasp. A new ruling closes the gate to them for at least two weeks, until crowded ships can take care of returning Americans.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN
Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

IF NOSE "FILLS UP" AT NIGHT
Here's One Successful Way To Get Welcome Relief

IF YOUR NOSE gives you a lot of trouble at night—fills up, makes breathing difficult, spoils sleep—just put a few drops of Va-tro-nol up each nostril.

RESULTS ARE SO surprisingly good because Va-tro-nol is expressly designed to relieve distress in the nose and upper throat, where transient congestion hinders free breathing. Enjoy the comfort Vicks Va-tro-nol brings . . . tonight!

One of the strangest love stories ever written, "Wuthering Heights" will mark the second Radio Theatre show of the 1939-40 season with Barbara Stanwyck, Brian Aherne and Ida Lupina in the starring roles on Monday, September 18. Directed by Cecil B. DeMille, this fantastic tale by Emily Bronte will be heard over the Columbia network at 8 P. M.

With Barbara Stanwyck as the ambitious Cathy and Brian Aherne in the part of Heathcliff, her stubborn and ruthless lover, "Wuthering Heights" concerns the incessant struggle of two young people of the English moors to find the joy they know is theirs.

BRIEF RADIO NOTES

Bob Knight, electric guitar player on Horace Heidt's "Answers From the Dancers," has written Bob Burns a letter asking him to let Knight try to electrify his bazooka.

Bess Johnson is still trying to figure out the latest "picture letter" from her daughter. The little girl away at camp writes to her mother regularly, using sketches instead of words.

Ezra Stone, star of "The Aldrich Family," recently bought an automobile and had to bring his mother along when he applied for a driver's license—they didn't believe he was old enough and his mother had to testify that he's 20.

Erno Rapee, maestro of "The Musical Playhouse," has been asked by a well known Metropolitan Opera singer to join him in a concert tour of key cities.

Solisists on the "Johnny Presents" programs are recruited mony group on the series.

Jack Roseleigh, featured in "Pepper Young's Family," has been associated with the topnotch producers as a legitimate stage actor. He worked for Arthur Hopkins, Sam H. Harris, David Belasco and Jones and Green.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

SENATE FOES OF ARMS SALES PLAN BATTLE

Roosevelt Plan Opponents Seek To Carry Issue Into Voter's Homes

He favored repeal of the arms embargo in the regular session.

"It is an embarrassing situation," said Murray, "because if we had acted originally it would have been admittedly neutral to all sides. Now that the war is on I'm not saying how I'll vote."

Senators Gurney (R) South Dakota and Davis (R) Pennsylvania, said they would be "good listeners" before announcing how they will vote.

Roosevelt Confident

Indicative of administration confidence of the result, Chairman Bloom of the house foreign affairs committee, said that more than 21 members of the house, who voted to retain the arms embargo, are now ready to lift it. That would be enough votes to change the result in that body, he said.

Whether the special session will confine itself to neutrality or develop into a battle of many issues was questionable.

Demands for additional WPA funds are expected, although Pepper, leader in the senate fight for bigger appropriations in the regular session, said the special session should be confined to neutrality.

The special session was also certain to face agitation for a new housing program, a vote on anti-lynching legislation, measures to check profiteering and to expand national defense.

HEAVIEST GUNS OF BERLIN ROAR ON WEST FRONT

the relentless French advance on German soil, the Germans rushed up reinforcements from the interior and opened their heaviest guns upon the strategic positions gained by the allied forces during the first ten days of hostilities on the western front.

The French high command, in official communique No. 21, admitted the heavy German firing.

"There was strong action by the enemy's heavy artillery on the heights south of Saarbrucken," the statement said.

French Advance

The French advance is continuing along a front 20 kilometers in length, it was learned. Despite the terrific German artillery barrage, the French maintained all of their previous gains.

The huge German shells turned the earth south of Saarbrucken into crater-pocked infernos of desolation, but there was no admission by the French that this renewed activity by the enemy had in any way stemmed the allied progress.

(Editor's note: In Berlin, the German high command declared that the advancing French had been "stopped" by German mine fields and artillery fire.)

Railroad Destroyed

The Germans were reported blowing up the railway line leading from Metz to Trier (Treves) indicating they may be preparing for a strategic retreat in that area.

Meanwhile, reports arriving in Paris from Luxembourg by way of Amsterdam reported heavy fighting all along the Luxembourg frontier. The windows of buildings in border towns have been shattered by the force of explosions, the dispatches said.

French artillery was reported to have rendered the rich German coal fields in the Saar area untenable. A coal shortage is expected in Germany soon if it does not already exist.

Race For Galicia

In connection with the situation on the Eastern Front, a French agency dispatch from Basle said:

"The German Army is racing the Poles to Galicia with a view to occupying the oil fields in the region of Drohobyoz and Borylaw before the Poles can destroy them. However, the Poles have already taken all measures to ensure destruction if necessary."

While no mention was made of French activity, infantry, aerial, or artillery, previous reports said the French applied unremitting pressure all along the Saar front.

One column, it was said in Paris, even penetrated a few kilometers east of the Saar River, and French troops were reported in the suburbs of Saarbrucken.

Hand-to-hand fighting occurred in a bitter German counter-attack on the heights of Hornback.

The preceding communique bore out semi-official reports in the French press that all French gains had been held, German counter-offensives beaten off, and that not one German soldier remained on French soil.

Position Improved

"Our troops have improved all the positions carried in the course of the preceding day," said last night's bulletin, No. 20.

"Our naval forces are reacting vigorously against enemy submarines. Air activity has been reduced owing to bad weather."

Naval circles said the seas have been practically cleared of danger, and the Anglo-French convoy system now are taking effect.

Reports said 43 German submarines remain on the seas, and another 18 are being completed, but the experts point out that this naval campaign is being carried out on one ocean, the Germans lacking their dangerous Pacific fleet of the World War.

Poles admitted today that the superiority of German numbers and the smashing drives of tanks and other mechanical equipment slashed important lines east of Warsaw and brought German mechanized forces up to the outskirts of Lwow in the South.

Warsaw Still Holds

But Warsaw, like Madrid in the Spanish Civil War, holds steadfast while the radio invites the populace to "dance and be gay," and trapped divisions in the bag west of the capital, reckless of the fact that its mouth is closing, struck in an offensive costly to the Germans, according to Polish accounts.

The Poles, lashed eastward, wondered frantically why the French and British have not hammered harder in the west to relieve the pressure on the Poland for whose independence they swore to fight.

Schrecklichkeit — frightfulness —a word applied by the allies to the German announcement that the Reich will employ all means necessary, including the possible bombing of cities, to blot out rear guard sniping by civilians in the wake of the German advance.

Germany emphasized that attacks on non-military objectives will be carried out only if the Poles themselves convert towns and villages into "battlefields."

Reprisal Promised

Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax of Britain replied quickly that Anglo-French reprisals would follow if German armed forces engaged in a "war of frightfulness."

"If the German supreme war lord carries out what seems to be a threat," said Lord Halifax in the House of Lords, "Europe will be faced with a devastating state of warfare of an uncivilized character which would force into insignificance the ravages of any other war."

To this the Daily Express, Lord Beverbrook's morning paper, added: "Lord Halifax utters a grim and grave warning he makes it plain that if Hitler bombs open towns, we may bomb open towns in Germany. He speaks with the stern, whole-hearted approval of the United Kingdom . . .

"If this is to be war without quarter, waged upon the defenseless and the aged . . . we will see to it that the horror descends upon our enemies as well as our friends."

The Polish embassy in London asserted that up to September 3, when the British and French entered the war, about 30 open towns and cities had been bombed. Since then, said the embassy, scores of towns were raided every day, the residential districts "suffering grievously."

On September 2 and 3, the embassy said, 1,500 civilians were killed.

a robbery in Huntington, Pa. He was sent up later in Jamestown, N. Y. for three years on a charge of assault. He was arrested for safeblowing in Parkersburg, W. Va., and was sent to the Moundsville prison where he served more than six years. He was released from Moundsville last December.

He has a brother, Raymond, who is serving time in the Ohio penitentiary for breaking and entering.

The police say that the fact that Jachim, who is a Pole, had various tools with him constitutes a charge in itself. He forced his way into the milling company office, they declare, thus accounting for the second affidavit.

MILLION THEFT DISCLOSED BY FEDERAL JURY

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 14—Theft of $1,000,000 in United States government bonds from the Spanish consulate in Washington, D. C., two years ago was disclosed today as a federal grand jury prepared to investigate and government officials impounded $14,375 in coupons clipped from the securities.

The disclosure carried with it an amazing tale apparently involving an internationl conspiracy perhaps tying in with the Loyalist-Franco war in Spain.

Wth the theft made public, it was reported by high government officials that possibly several additional millions in bonds may have been stolen.

Furnishing the first trace of the huge loot, the coupons were presented to the Banco de Pacifico at Tijuana, Mexico, last Saturday by a man whose identity was closely guarded. After furnishing a recepit for the negotiables, the Mexican bank forwarded the coupons to the United States National Bank at San Diego to be cashed, federal department of justice agents informed U. S. District Attorney Ben Harrison, who immediately began a grand jury investigation.

The San Diego bank noted the coupons were due in 1937 and as a precautionary measure checked with the Federal Reserve bank in Los Angeles, which made the discovery that they were clipped from stolen bonds.

Federal officials in Los Angeles said the Franco government has laid claim to the recovered portion of the loot which was assertedly stolen while the Loyalists were in power.

RUSSIA STARTS VIOLENT PRESS DRIVE ON POLES

MOSCOW, Sept. 14—A violent press campaign accusing Poland of oppressing her minorities, including 11,000,000 Russians within the Ukraine and White Russian republics, was launched by the Communist party newspaper Pravda today.

(Editor's note: Reliable sources in Berlin forecast an early Russo-German partition of Poland, with the eastern part of the country handed over to the U. S. S. R.)

"The Polish ruling classes," Pravda said, "have done everything possible to aggravate their relations with national minorities and bring them into a state of extreme tension."

during the last few years as their leading port as an alternative to Danzig itself.

Between $200,000,000 and $300,000,000 were poured into construction of fortifications and harbor facilities. The Polish-American line established its base there for huge motorliners such as the Batory and Pilsudski operated from Gdynia's mammoth piers and out through deepdug channels into the Baltic and the Atlantic ocean.

The Germans opened their attack upon Gdynia immediately upon the outbreak of hostilities, concentrating large land, sea and air forces in Danzig bay to batter the city into submission.

Capture of surrounding areas was comparatively easy except for the Westerplatte munitions base on Hela peninsula, which held out for six days against the German drive with a heorism that drew unstinted praise from the German high command. The commander of Westerplatte was allowed to retain his sword after the surrender as a token of German recognition of his bravery and that of his comrades.

SALVAGE WORK CONTINUES ON DAMAGED MILL

Salvage work is continuing at the John W. Eshelman and Sons Milling Co., East Mill Street, with employes of the company removing soaked grain from damaged bins in an effort to reclaim as much of it as possible.

The work is under the direction of the Mills Mutual Insurance Co., a Pennsylvania concern.

Many Pickaway County farmers have gone to the mill to buy grain that has not been damaged too much. The grain they have been obtaining includes a mixture, middlings, corn and wheat being included.

Two rail cars filled with grain from the bins have been sent to Chillicothe for drying and two more carloads have been taken to the Circleville plant of the Ralston-Purina Co. for the same purpose.

A contractor is expected to confer with milling company officials Thursday to discuss the necessary improvements in the building, which was threatened with destruction Tuesday evening by flames that started high in the structure. Milling company executives maintain hope that work may be resumed early next week.

the section farthest west, Frisinger said. However, he declared that every effort would be made to have hand railing placed on the section before October 18 so that traffic could use all three new sections.

Guard rails are yet to be placed, there is much seeding to be done along the right-of-way, and several other jobs that will take considerable time must be completed before the project is ended.

The Lewis & Frisinger Co. started to work on the highway last October 24.

The new highway, which also eliminates several dangerous curves, is four feet above the level the Scioto River reached during the 1913 flood.

ADVISORY BOARD CALLS MEETING AT COURTHOUSE

A newly-organized advisory board to assist the Pickaway County division of public assistance will conduct its first meeting Friday afternoon in the office of Probate Judge Lemuel Weldon. The committee is chosen to advise the division, which is headed by Miss Virginia Smith, in any problems of importance. Under state law a county advisory group is necessary before a county may receive state funds for dependent children, blir persons and others who are , otected by the Social Security Laws.

On the committe are Judge Weldon, Dr. A. D. Blackburn, Frank Fischer, Mrs. A. Hulse Hays, Mrs. Clark Will, Mrs. W. T. Ulm, Mrs. H. G. Stevenson and Ralph E. May. Officers will be elected at the meeting.

Judge Henry J. Robinson, chief of the division of public assistance for the state, will address the committee.

TWO DEAD, FOUR WOUNDED WHEN DRUNK USES GUN

SALINA, Pa., Sept. 14 — Two persons were dead, and four others lay wounded today after Martin Vnuk, 25, apparently drink-crazed, ran amuck here, barricaded himself in his two-story shack home and defied state police to get him out.

Those dead were Mrs. Catherine Machulsky, 49, mother of 12, and Philip Rosko, 62.

Wounded were Mrs. Philip Rosko, Mickie Karaffa, 38, Frank Rosko, 20, and Constable Jerry Tussey.

During a two-hour siege of the Vnuk house, the killer withstood rifle and tear gas barrages from state police. When finally dragged from the building, Vnuk was helpless from gas fumes but otherwise unhurt. Police said Vnuk held grudges against the members of the two families he shot because they had once testified against him in court and because he thought one of the Machulsky boys was responsible for the death of his son in a motorcycle accident.

SENATE FOES OF ARMS SALES PLAN BATTLE

He favored repeal of the arms embargo in the regular session.

"It is an embarrassing situation," said Murray, "because if we had acted originally it would have been admittedly neutral to all sides. Now that the war is on I'm not saying how I'll vote."

Senators Gurney (R) South Dakota and Davis (R) Pennsylvania, said they would be "good listeners" before announcing how they will vote.

Roosevelt Confident

Indicative of administration confidence of the result, Chairman Bloom of the house foreign affairs committee, said that more than 21 members of the house, who voted to retain the arms embargo, are now ready to lift it. That would be enough votes to change the result in that body, he said.

Whether the special session will confine itself to neutrality or develop into a battle of many issues was questionable.

Demands for additional WPA funds are expected, although Pepper, leader in the senate fight for bigger appropriations in the regular session, said the special session should be confined to neutrality.

The special session was also certain to face agitation for a new housing program, a vote on anti-lynching legislation, measures to check profiteering and to expand national defense.

HEAVIEST GUNS OF BERLIN ROAR ON WEST FRONT

the relentless French advance on German soil, the Germans rushed up reinforcements from the interior and opened their heaviest guns upon the strategic positions gained by the allied forces during the first ten days of hostilities on the western front.

The French high command, in official communique No. 21, admitted the heavy German firing.

"There was strong action by the enemy's heavy artillery on the heights south of Saarbrucken," the statement said.

French Advance

The French advance is continuing along a front 20 kilometers in length, it was learned. Despite the terrific German artillery barrage, the French maintained all of their previous gains.

The huge German shells turned the earth south of Saarbrucken into crater-pocked infernos of desolation, but there was no admission by the French that this renewed activity by the enemy had in any way stemmed the allied progress.

(Editor's note: In Berlin, the German high command declared that the advancing French had been "stopped" by German mine fields and artillery fire.)

Railroad Destroyed

The Germans were reported blowing up the railway line leading from Metz to Trier (Treves) indicating they may be preparing for a strategic retreat in that area.

Meanwhile, reports arriving in Paris from Luxembourg by way of Amsterdam reported heavy fighting all along the Luxembourg frontier. The windows of buildings in border towns have been shattered by the force of explosions, the dispatches said.

French artillery was reported to have rendered the rich German coal fields in the Saar area untenable. A coal shortage is expected in Germany soon if it does not already exist.

Race For Galicia

In connection with the situation on the Eastern Front, a French agency dispatch from Basle said:

"The German Army is racing the Poles to Galicia with a view to occupying the oil fields in the region of Drohobyoz and Borylsaw before the Poles can destroy them. However, the Poles have already taken all measures to ensure destruction if necessary."

While no mention was made of French activity, infantry, aerial, or artillery, previous reports said the French applied unremitting pressure all along the Saar front.

One column, it was said in Paris, even penetrated a few kilometers east of the Saar River, and French troops were reported in the suburbs of Saarbrucken.

Hand-to-hand fighting occurred in a bitter German counter-attack on the heights of Hornback.

The preceding communique bore out semi-official reports in the French press that all French gains had been held, German counter-offensives beaten off, and that not one German soldier remained on French soil.

Position Improved

"Our troops have improved all the positions carried in the course of the preceding day," said last night's bulletin, No. 20.

"Our naval forces are reacting vigorously against enemy submarines. Air activity has been reduced owing to bad weather."

Naval circles said the seas have been practically cleared of danger, and the Anglo-French convoy system now are taking effect.

Reports said 43 German submarines remain on the seas, and another 18 are being completed, but the experts point out that this naval campaign is being carried out on one ocean, the Germans lacking their dangerous Pacific fleet of the World War.

Poles admitted today that the superiority of German numbers and the smashing drives of tanks and other mechanical equipment slashed important lines east of Warsaw and brought German mechanized forces up to the outskirts of Lwow in the South.

Warsaw Still Holds

But Warsaw, like Madrid in the Spanish Civil War, holds steadfast while the radio invites the populace to "dance and be gay," and trapped divisions in the bag west of the capital, reckless of the fact that its mouth is closing, struck in an offensive costly to the Germans, according to Polish accounts.

The Poles, lashed eastward, wondered frantically why the French and British have not hammered harder in the west to relieve the pressure on the Poland for whose independence they swore to fight.

Schrecklichkeit — frightfulness —a word applied by the allies to the German announcement that the Reich will employ all means necessary, including the possible bombing of cities, to blot out rear guard sniping by civilians in the wake of the German advance.

Germany emphasized that attacks on non-military objectives will be carried out only if the Poles themselves convert towns and villages into "battlefields."

Reprisal Promised

Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax of Britain replied quickly that Anglo-French reprisals would follow if German armed forces engaged in a "war of frightfulness."

"If the German supreme war lord carries out what seems to be a threat," said Lord Halifax in the House of Lords, "Europe will be faced with a devastating state of warfare of an uncivilized character which would force into insignificance the ravages of any other war."

To this the Daily Express, Lord Beverbrook's morning paper, added: "Lord Halifax utters a grim and grave warning he makes it plain that if Hitler bombs open towns, we may bomb open towns in Germany. He speaks with the stern, whole-hearted approval of the United Kingdom . . .

"If this is to be war without quarter, waged upon the defenseless and the aged . . . we will see to it that the horror descends upon our enemies as well as our friends."

The Polish embassy in London asserted that up to September 3, when the British and French entered the war, about 30 open towns and cities had been bombed. Since then, said the embassy, scores of towns were raided every day, the residential districts "suffering grievously."

On September 2 and 3, the embassy said, 1,500 civilians were killed.

a robbery in Huntington, Pa. He was sent up later in Jamestown, N. Y. for three years on a charge of assault. He was arrested for safeblowing in Parkersburg, W. Va., and was sent to the Moundsville prison where he served more than six years. He was released from Moundsville last December.

He has a brother, Raymond, who is serving time in the Ohio penitentiary for breaking and entering.

The police say that the fact that Jachim, who is a Pole, had various tools with him constitutes a charge in itself. He forced his way into the milling company office, they declare, thus accounting for the second affidavit.

MILLION THEFT DISCLOSED BY FEDERAL JURY

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 14—Theft of $1,000,000 in United States government bonds from the Spanish consulate in Washington, D. C., two years ago was disclosed today as a federal grand jury prepared to investigate and government officials impounded $14,375 in coupons clipped from the securities.

The disclosure carried with it an amazing tale apparently involving an internationl conspiracy perhaps tying in with the Loyalist-Franco war in Spain.

Wth the theft made public, it was reported by high government officials that possibly several additional millions in bonds may have been stolen.

Furnishing the first trace of the huge loot, the coupons were presented to the Banco de Pacifico at Tijuana, Mexico, last Saturday by a man whose identity was closely guarded. After furnishing a recepit for the negotiables, the Mexican bank forwarded the coupons to the United States National Bank at San Diego to be cashed, federal department of justice agents informed U. S. District Attorney Ben Harrison, who immediately began a grand jury investigation.

The San Diego bank noted the coupons were due in 1937 and as a precautionary measure checked with the Federal Reserve bank in Los Angeles, which made the discovery that they were clipped from stolen bonds.

Federal officials in Los Angeles said the Franco government has laid claim to the recovered portion of the loot which was assertedly stolen while the Loyalists were in power.

RUSSIA STARTS VIOLENT PRESS DRIVE ON POLES

MOSCOW, Sept. 14—A violent press campaign accusing Poland of oppressing her minorities, including 11,000,000 Russians within the Ukraine and White Russian republics, was launched by the Communist party newspaper Pravda today.

(Editor's note: Reliable sources in Berlin forecast an early Russo-German partition of Poland, with the eastern part of the country handed over to the U. S. S. R.)

"The Polish ruling classes," Pravda said, "have done everything possible to aggravate their relations with national minorities and bring them into a state of extreme tension."

during the last few years as their leading port as an alternative to Danzig itself.

Between $200,000,000 and $300,000,000 were poured into construction of fortifications and harbor facilities. The Polish-American line established its base there for huge motorliners such as the Batory and Pilsudski operated from Gdynia's mammoth piers and out through deepdug channels into the Baltic and the Atlantic ocean.

The Germans opened their attack upon Gdynia immediately upon the outbreak of hostilities, concentrating large land, sea and air forces in Danzig bay to batter the city into submission.

Capture of surrounding areas was comparatively easy except for the Westerplatte munitions base on Hela peninsula, which held out for six days against the German drive with a heorism that drew unstinted praise from the German high command. The commander of Westerplatte was allowed to retain his sword after the surrender as a token of German recognition of his bravery and that of his comrades.

SALVAGE WORK CONTINUES ON DAMAGED MILL

Salvage work is continuing at the John W. Eshelman and Sons Milling Co., East Mill Street, with employes of the company removing soaked grain from damaged bins in an effort to reclaim as much of it as possible.

The work is under the direction of the Mills Mutual Insurance Co., a Pennsylvania concern.

Many Pickaway County farmers have gone to the mill to buy grain that has not been damaged too much. The grain they have been obtaining includes a mixture, middlings, corn and wheat being included.

Two rail cars filled with grain from the bins have been sent to Chillicothe for drying and two more carloads have been taken to the Circleville plant of the Ralston-Purina Co. for the same purpose.

A contractor is expected to confer with milling company officials Thursday to discuss the necessary improvements in the building, which was threatened with destruction Tuesday evening by flames that started high in the structure. Milling company executives maintain hope that work may be resumed early next week.

the section farthest west, Frisinger said. However, he declared that every effort would be made to have hand railing placed on the section before October 18 so that traffic could use all three new sections.

Guard rails are yet to be placed, there is much seeding to be done along the right-of-way, and several other jobs that will take considerable time must be completed before the project is ended.

The Lewis & Frisinger Co. started to work on the highway last October 24.

The new highway, which also eliminates several dangerous curves, is four feet above the level the Scioto River reached during the 1913 flood.

ADVISORY BOARD CALLS MEETING AT COURTHOUSE

A newly-organized advisory board to assist the Pickaway County division of public assistance will conduct its first meeting Friday afternoon in the office of Probate Judge Lemuel Weldon. The committee is chosen to advise the division, which is headed by Miss Virginia Smith, in any problems of importance. Under state law a county advisory group is necessary before a county may receive state funds for dependent children, blir persons and others who are otected by the Social Security Laws.

On the committe are Judge Weldon, Dr. A. D. Blackburn, Frank Fischer, Mrs. A. Hulse Hays, Mrs. Clark Will, Mrs. W. T. Ulm, Mrs. H. G. Stevenson and Ralph E. May. Officers will be elected at the meeting.

Judge Henry J. Robinson, chief of the division of public assistance for the state, will address the committee.

TWO DEAD, FOUR WOUNDED WHEN DRUNK USES GUN

SALINA, Pa., Sept. 14 — Two persons were dead, and four others lay wounded today after Martin Vnuk, 25, apparently drink-crazed, ran amuck here, barricaded himself in his two-story shack home and defied state police to get him out.

Those dead were Mrs. Catherine Machulsky, 49, mother of 12, and Philip Rosko, 62.

Wounded were Mrs. Philip Rosko, Mickie Karaffa, 38, Frank Rosko, 20, and Constable Jerry Tussey.

During a two-hour siege of the Vnuk house, the killer withstood rifle and tear gas barrages from state police. When finally dragged from the building, Vnuk was helpless from gas fumes but otherwise unhurt. Police said Vnuk held grudges against the members of the two families he shot because they had once testified against him in court and because he thought one of the Machulsky boys was responsible for the death of his son in a motorcycle accident.

IT'S OUR TEAM!

When we see a Circleville football team in action, we don't think of it as the team of a certain school but as OURS. That's because we're proud of the tradition of good sportsmanship and clean, hard fighting that has been built by local grid teams of the past.

We've seen local teams win and we've seen them lose . . but we're proud to say that we've never seen them arrogant over victory or bitter over defeat. The boys who play the game for Circleville have always had the true spirit of American sportsmanship.

We have high hopes for this year's football team. Naturally, we'd be tickled to death to see Circleville rate the top of the list when the season is over. But we want the members of Circleville team to know that we're "for" them all the way, win or lose, just so long as they play the game with the spirit which has always been characteristic of our gridmen. We want them to know that we'll be on the sidelines, cheering them on, wishing them well, hoping for victory but never crying about losses.

Play the game well and play it hard! Get in and fight! Make us prouder of you than we've ever been of previous teams. Make us proud to say "That's OUR Team!"

GOOD-WILLING

INTERNATIONAL good will tours, with all expenses paid, are not always so successful as the hosts expect. Japan is discovering that lately.

Many Americans, supposed to be influential, have been invited to that country, shown around and treated with great courtesy and hospitality, in the hope that they will leaven American opinion and make it more favorable to Japan. Everything is free and delightful, says an American newspaper man who has observed the procedure. But the guests get tired of so much attention and courtesy. They crave to be let alone to see things for themselves and think their own thoughts. They just naturally come to feel that something is being "put over on them" and resent it.

As for the psychology involved, the American observer says, "Any theatrical man will tell you that the customers most difficult to please are those who come in on a pass." It may not be logical, but it's human nature. And in the application of this principle to Americans, whose good opinion is now courted by so many foreign nations, propagandists might well take the hint. Make things a little harder for us, and we'll be more appreciative.

WAR PERSPECTIVE

A BANK in Scranton, Pa., has forbidden employees to talk about the war in Europe with depositors. Neutrality, declared for the city by the mayor of Scranton, includes other prohibitions.

Thousands of coal miners and other laborers in that area are natives of Poland or Germany. It would be surprising if there were no hard feelings and no quick tempers to bring the war to Scranton. Restricting that topic of conversation may be necessary.

It would be just as well, perhaps, not to extend this type of neutrality widely through our cities. Some discussion should be permitted as a safety valve, at least. Bottling up opinions too severly may be more dangerous than free argument.

On the other hand, too much heated discussion is bad. This country needs clear and calm thinking, and neither suppression nor violent expression.

It's going to be a fine time for Americans to travel in their own country—if they can get enough leisure for it.

All the belligerents, if you take their word for it, are just trying to stop the war.

These are great nights, but weary mornings, for radio hounds.

Hitler may soon be wishing he were in the Duce's shoes.

TENSION LIFTED BY COMEDY

WASHINGTON—When you read about the high-powered things now being done in Washington, it's hard to believe that comedy runs very close to the surface. One of the President's most important moves—proclamation of a state of limited emergency—took place in a setting of pure farce.

The President, confronting a crowd of newsmen in his office, was on the point of announcing this momentous step — when suddenly he couldn't find the proclamation. It was like the bridegrool losing the ring.

After mussing around among the papers on his desk, the President set the tone of comedy by suggesting that "Frank Murphy must have run off with it." He ordered someone to pursue the Attorney General, who had just left the room.

Then Steve Early began hunting on the President's desk. Murphy came back, pushing through the crowd of newsmen.

"Frank," called the President, "where's that copy of the proclamation you ran off with?"

Murphy searched in his papers, but protested innocence.

"Berle must have picked it up," said the President, and the Assistant Secretary of State was sent for. Meantime the President leaned over to rummage through his waste basket. With this crowning touch, the conference became a riot of laughter.

In mock reproof, the President shook a finger at the crowd and said, "That proclamation was here just three minutes ago. I warn you, everyone in the front row is suspect!"

The mysterious paper was finally brought over from the State Department and the conference settled down to a discussion of the price of food.

SMELLY

During his interrogation by the Dies committee, Earl Browder, U. S. Communist boss, was asked how an ordinary person could distinguish between a Stalinist and a Trotskyite.

"Well, if they were both in the same room," explained Browder, "you could tell which one was the Trotskyite by his smell. All Trotskyites smell badly."

"I see," observed Chairman Martin Dies, a Texan Democrat who has frequently taken pot-shots at the New Deal Democratic President, "something very similar to the way you can tell the difference between a Democrat and a Republican."

"I can't say as to that," shot back Browder, looking squarely at Dies. "I have known Democrats who smelled just as bad as Republicans."

NEXT ARMY DRAFT?

At first glance, the man who is working up the next army draft, should we get into war, looks dangerously Prussian. This is the job which General Hugh Johnson once had, and the man who holds it now is a husky major, with red hair that stands up straight on his head.

But Major Lewis B. Hershey is no Prussian. He believes in Sherman's army,

Important Advances In Nerve Disorders

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

IN A REPORT on Medical Progress in the New England Medical Journal, Professor Ayer, of Harvard, picks the following as the most important advances in diseases of the nervous system.

(1) The record of brain waves. It is possible now by delicate electrical machinery to detect and record differences in electrical potential as the brain thinks, and these brain waves are coming to have some significance in studying human brain disorders. We have long utilized electrical waves through the heart, and now the even more delicate electrical disturbances of the brain can be measured.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

There are two kinds of waves that appear, one being the alpha waves, of ten second intervals, that are a constant product of the brain which may be influenced by many slight changes—chemical, thermal, physical, physiological. For instance, they are slightly different when a person is lying down than when he is standing up.

Delta Waves

The other brain waves are called delta waves; they are the product of a disordered brain cortex. In epilepsy a disordered rate of production of waves is recognized. There is the injection of spikes in the record, and in a doubtful case these are generally regarded as conclusive from the diagnostic standpoint. Basing conclusions on this study, epilepsy can be defined as a "paroxysmal disordered rhythm."

Brain tumors, in many instances, can be exactly localized by this means.

Different personalities have different brain waves. Phlegmatic and exuberant personalities show different brain chorlings. The brain waves of identical twins are found to resemble each other closely.

(2) A new drug in the treatment of epilepsy, dilantin. Most encouraging results have been reported from it. Within modern times the drug, luminal, has largely replaced the use of bromides in epilepsy. Dilantin belongs to the same group. The barbiturates have a hypnotic quality and induce sleep. Dilantin is poor in its sleep-producing qualities, but it controls convulsions very effectively.

Controlled Convulsions

Three hundred and thirty patients with epilepsy have been treated with this medicine. In 79 per cent it controlled convulsions better than any other form of treatment. The patients tolerated the drug very well and felt better with it than on any other form of treatment.

(3) The treatment of vertigo due to nerve disease—Ménière's disease—augmented by the use of a diet low in salt and high in ammonium chloride. The theory is that in Ménière's disease there is a disordered sodium nutrition. However, this finding has been disputed and as against it a series of patients did well when the salt in the diet was let alone but potassium chloride given.

As time goes on, however, more evidence accumulates that the best way of treating Ménière's disease is by surgery. The operation as now performed does not cause deafness as formerly.

(4) Neuritis. It used to be thought that there were two forms of neuritis, one caused by poisons taken in through the mouth, such as lead, alcohol, arsenic, etc., and the second caused by poisons secreted in the body in diabetes, infections, etc.

Now it is believed that they are all due to vitamin B deficiency. As soon as more than one-third of the mobile B stock of the liver is exhausted, nervous symptoms appear.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet", "Indigestion and Constipation", "Reducing and Gaining", "Infant Feeding", "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes", "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin".

CHAPTER FORTY-TWO

SHOT'S FOOLISH hope of having a chance to kill Luis Escobar with an axe fortunately did not materialize.

For one thing, Escobar did not stoop to address the prisoner again directly. He was a commander of an army, however disreputable the army might be, and as such he not only was very busy, but he had a definite dignity to maintain. He contrived to be rather pompous when he walked across the camp grounds with orderlies at his heels. He could not waste time seeing one hapless prisoner.

Escobar's camp cooks saw to it that Shot kept busy, and neglected to mention when, where and what he himself was to eat when meal time came. He had had no breakfast. He slaved all morning preparing food for other people. When it was cooked, its savor was more powerful than the urge in him to kill Luis Escobar.

"I'm too weak to do any fighting anyhow, now," he reasoned, truthfully. "I got to scrape up some grub."

He almost literally had to scrape it up, too. He dared not try to eat any of the beef that had been prepared for the three or four hundred men he saw about the place, nor any of the hard flat tortilla bread that had been cooked, nor any of the steaming peppery stew. His principal aim was to give satisfaction in his present status so that he would not be tied hand and foot and locked up again. Free of bonds this way, he just might be able to grab a chance to run or fight or accomplish something. So he ignored the food he helped prepare until the main cooks themselves sat down to eat. Then he picked up the smelly cowhide he had skinned off that morning. Flies swarmed away, but he saw that strips of lean meat clung to it, and numerous bits of tallow. Unobtrusively he pulled off a handful of the leaner pieces and laid them on a rock near his fire. In ten minutes they had cooked to an edible state, and he devoured them with as much relish as he had ever shown for any meal in all his life.

He felt much better, stronger, after that, and so rather boldly gave thought to coffee that had been prepared in great tubs. When they had been emptied, he saw a quart or so of loose grounds in one tub. Under the guise of washing it, he managed to heat a small bit of water in those old grounds and boil out some of the stimulant for himself. He could not maneuver any bread, nor stew, but he didn't need it. The beef and the stolen coffee made a new man of him. He began studying the camp with minute care, looking for any possibility of escaping, however remote.

All day horsemen had been going and coming. Overhearing conversation and crisp military orders, he knew that most of the soldiers were either drilling or having target practice a mile away. He thanked his lucky stars that he spoke Spanish fluently, even though he had tried to pretend ignorance of the language.

Immediately after noon his duty again was to butcher steers, for it would take a crew of men six hours to prepare the night meal. Shot worked at it industriously, saying nothing when the cooks insulted him and barked orders at him. Since he also had to keep the outdoor fire going—it was used mainly for heating water with which dishes were washed—he was able to cook himself still more bits of food. Some of these he ate. Others he quietly stuffed in his pockets for possible emergency use, and a handful or two he hid in the wood pile.

He had made up his mind by four or five that evening to work obediently until nightfall, then make his try for freedom. Doubtless they would plan to tie him or lock him up for the night. Just before they did so, he'd make his break, win or lose. He had managed to conceal a butcher knife under his shirt. At the last moment he would snatch a gun if possible, or rely on his wood axe. Or better—just dash to a saddled horse, lay low on the saddle, and trust to the Mexicans' poor aim. Twilight would be the best hour for such an effort, because then marksmanship would be poor, yet a horse could still see to run.

Late in the afternoon he was squatting by the fire, poking at it to increase its heat for the supper hour, and perfecting his plans in his mind, when he again studied the surrounding landscape carefully to determine a direction for flight. He would have to head for rough country with plenty of rocks and brush, hoping to out-run his pursuers and then lose them. He wanted, if possible, to head back north toward the United States and toward Lorena. The more he thought of Lorena, the more gloom settled upon him. Whatever had happened to her, he wondered. He had promised to come back to her before dawn, and here was another sunset at hand!

All at once, squatting there poking the fire, Shot's alert eyes caught something on the horizon. At first he thought it an illusion caused by his own fire smoke, but he moved aside and saw that it was at a distance.

From a ridge not too far away, perhaps two or three miles, smoke was moving upward in short broken puffs, as if somebody had blotted out sections of a steady column.

"Signals, by lordy!" Shot murmured. "Smoke signals!"

He wondered what the Mexicans could be doing with signals like the Indians used in the warfare days of 60 years ago. He glanced around. Nobody was noticing. Apparently everyone of the soldiers, including Escobar, had come back into camp, he observed. If the signals were meant for this camp he could see no recognition of them, nobody answering.

"Sa-a-a-ay!" Shot murmured then, working there alone. Suddenly his heart went pounding. He remembered another day when he and Lorena had been keeping company and talking about all manner of things. "My lordy, I wonder if she—if she—!"

He hardly dared phrase it even to himself, but he immediately looked around to see some means of answering. He would need a blanket, an old sack, some green brush or—there, the wet cowhides! Bloody and pliable, they could serve as a blanket to muffle the fire.

He controlled himself so as not to act suspiciously, but got one of the green, hairy hides he had skinned off that afternoon and with it pretended to fan a contrary blaze. He put on some more twigs and fuel to mislead anyone who might be watching. He glanced hastily around.

Nobody seemed to be paying any attention. This was the busiest hour in the long cook tent. Others were preparing for the meal elsewhere.

Shot flopped the wet hide over his fire. His smoke column stopped, cut off abruptly.

Quickly he jerked the hide off. A black puff floated up.

He flopped the hide on—off and on—off and on—and off.

Perfect "dots" went upward, drifting just a little in the gentle evening air. He waited two or three minutes and repeated the maneuver, his heart pounding lest he be detected at it. While waiting he tried to appear as busy as possible, swinging his axe at kindling wood.

Whoever made the other signals caught his answer immediately, he soon knew. For that horizon fire showed further puffs or "dots," too, a sure recognition. Then it faded out entirely.

"She's put out her fire to keep from being seen!" Shot guessed. "That's Lorena! Bound to be. She saw me. She must have the field glasses. She's up there sending me encouragement—by lordy, what a girl!"

He wished to goodness he and Lorena had practiced their Indian smoke signals still more that day a week or two ago, so that they might have exchanged definite messages. But no matter. A grand elation had swelled within him. Lorena—what a girl! Maybe she had help lurking in the hills, or maybe she didn't. No matter. He felt that all the bandit soldiers in Christendom couldn't keep him from her now. He didn't know how he could escape, but he would certainly show Senor Escobar some kind of excitement before this night was over.

"Something Must Be Done About Danzig and the Corridor!

"The thing to do is to give back to Germany what belongs to her.

"When Poland imposed upon the good faith of President Wilson in order to obtain German territory, she was granted this land only under certain formal conditions which she never has observed.

"Above all, she undertook to respect the status of her minorities.

"It was Clemenceau who made this stipulation the essential consideration before handing over the territory.

"It is a fact that Poland has not fulfilled this condition.

"Quite the contrary, she has badly treated the local minorities, badly administered these provinces, badly organized social and working conditions.

"She should have considered Danzig, according to her own words, her natural port, as her obvious and only harbon. Instead she has wilfully neglected it and has herself established a dangerous competitor port of Gdynia, which latter she has moreover supplemented by a naval base not specified in the treaty of Versailles and not in acocrdance with the disarmament provisions contained therein.

"In the parallel case of Salonika, Yugoslavia showed that there was no need for her to seize the slightest particle of Greek soil to obtain an outlet.

"What would France have said if at Versailles, Switzerland had claimed a corridor down the Rhone valley to provide her with access to the Mediterranean, where the port of Cette has proved so useful during critical times?

GOOD-WILLING

INTERNATIONAL good will tours, with all expenses paid, are not always so successful as the hosts expect. Japan is discovering that lately.

Many Americans, supposed to be influential, have been invited to that country, shown around and treated with great courtesy and hospitality, in the hope that they will leaven American opinion and make it more favorable to Japan. Everything is free and delightful, says an American newspaper man who has observed the procedure. But the guests get tired of so much attention and courtesy. They crave to be let alone to see things for themselves and think their own thoughts. They just naturally come to feel that something is being "put over on them" and resent it.

As for the psychology involved, the American observer says, "Any theatrical man will tell you that the customers most difficult to please are those who come in on a pass." It may not be logical, but it's human nature. And in the application of this principle to Americans, whose good opinion is now courted by so many foreign nations, propagandists might well take the hint. Make things a little harder for us, and we'll be more appreciative.

WAR PERSPECTIVE

A BANK in Scranton, Pa., has forbidden employees to talk about the war in Europe with depositors. Neutrality, declared for the city by the mayor of Scranton, includes other prohibitions.

Thousands of coal miners and other laborers in that area are natives of Poland or Germany. It would be surprising if there were no hard feelings and no quick tempers to bring the war to Scranton. Restricting that topic of conversation may be necessary.

It would be just as well, perhaps, not to extend this type of neutrality widely through our cities. Some discussion should be permitted as a safety valve, at least. Bottling up opinions too severly may be more dangerous than free argument.

On the other hand, too much heated discussion is bad. This country needs clear and calm thinking, and neither suppression nor violent expression.

It's going to be a fine time for Americans to travel in their own country—if they can get enough leisure for it.

All the belligerents, if you take their word for it, are just trying to stop the war.

These are great nights, but weary mornings, for radio hounds.

Hitler may soon be wishing he were in the Duce's shoes.

CHAPTER FORTY-TWO

SHOT'S FOOLISH hope of having a chance to kill Luis Escobar with an axe fortunately did not materialize.

For one thing, Escobar did not stoop to address the prisoner again directly. He was a commander of an army, however disreputable the army might be, and as such he not only was very busy, but he had a definite dignity to maintain. He contrived to be rather pompous when he walked across the camp grounds with orderlies at his heels. He could not waste time seeing one hapless prisoner.

Escobar's camp cooks saw to it that Shot kept busy, and neglected to mention when, where and what he himself was to eat when meal time came. He had had no breakfast. He slaved all morning preparing food for other people. When it was cooked, its savor was more powerful than the urge in him to kill Luis Escobar.

"I'm too weak to do any fighting anyhow, now," he reasoned, truthfully. "I got to scrape up some grub."

He almost literally had to scrape it up, too. He dared not try to eat any of the beef that had been prepared for the three or four hundred men he saw about the place, nor any of the hard flat tortilla bread that had been cooked, nor any of the steaming peppery stew. His principal aim was to give satisfaction in his present status so that he would not be tied hand and foot and locked up again. Free of bonds this way, he just might be able to grab a chance to run or fight or accomplish something. So he ignored the food he helped prepare until the main cooks themselves sat down to eat. Then he picked up the smelly cowhide he had skinned off that morning. Flies swarmed away, but he saw that strips of lean meat clung to it, and numerous bits of tallow. Unobtrusively he pulled off a handful of the leaner pieces and laid them on a rock near his fire. In ten minutes they had cooked to an edible state, and he devoured them with as much relish as he had ever shown for any meal in all his life.

He felt much better, stronger, after that, and so rather boldly gave thought to coffee that had been prepared in great tubs. When they had been emptied, he saw a quart or so of loose grounds in one tub. Under the guise of washing it, he managed to heat a small bit of water in those old grounds and boil out some of the stimulant for himself. He could not maneuver any bread, nor stew, but he didn't need it. The beef and the stolen coffee made a new man of him. He began studying the camp with minute care, looking for any possibility of escaping, however remote.

All day horsemen had been going and coming. Overhearing conversation and crisp military orders, he knew that most of the soldiers were either drilling or having target practice a mile away. He thanked his lucky stars that he spoke Spanish fluently, even though he had tried to pretend ignorance of the language.

Immediately after noon his duty again was to butcher steers, for it would take a crew of men six hours to prepare the night meal. Shot worked at it industriously, saying nothing when the cooks insulted him and barked orders at him. Since he also had to keep the outdoor fire going—it was used mainly for heating water with which dishes were washed—he was able to cook himself still more bits of food. Some of these he ate. Others he quietly stuffed in his pockets for possible emergency use, and a handful or two he hid in the wood pile.

He had made up his mind by four or five that evening to work obediently until nightfall, then make his try for freedom. Doubtless they would plan to tie him or lock him up for the night. Just before they did so, he'd make his break, win or lose. He had managed to conceal a butcher knife under his shirt. At the last moment he would snatch a gun if possible, or rely on his wood axe. Or better—just dash to a saddled horse, lay low on the saddle, and trust to the Mexicans' poor aim. Twilight would be the best hour for such an effort, because then marksmanship would be poor, yet a horse could still see to run.

Late in the afternoon he was squatting by the fire, poking at it to increase its heat for the supper hour, and perfecting his plans in his mind, when he again studied the surrounding landscape carefully to determine a direction for flight. He would have to head for rough country with plenty of rocks and brush, hoping to out-run his pursuers and then lose them. He wanted, if possible, to head back north toward the United States and toward Lorena. The more he thought of Lorena, the more gloom settled upon him. Whatever had happened to her, he wondered. He had promised to come back to her before dawn, and here was another sunset at hand!

All at once, squatting there poking the fire, Shot's alert eyes caught something on the horizon. At first he thought it an illusion caused by his own fire smoke, but he moved aside and saw that it was at a distance.

From a ridge not too far away, perhaps two or three miles, smoke was moving upward in short broken puffs, as if somebody had blotted out sections of a steady column.

"Signals, by lordy!" Shot murmured. "Smoke signals!"

He wondered what the Mexicans could be doing with signals like the Indians used in the warfare days of 60 years ago. He glanced around. Nobody was noticing. Apparently everyone of the soldiers, including Escobar, had come back into camp, he observed. If the signals were meant for this camp he could see no recognition of them, nobody answering.

"Sa-a-a-ay!" Shot murmured then, working there alone. Suddenly his heart went pounding. He remembered another day when he and Lorena had been keeping company and talking about all manner of things. "My lordy, I wonder if she—if she—!"

He hardly dared phrase it even to himself, but he immediately looked around to see some means of answering. He would need a blanket, an old sack, some green brush or—there, the wet cowhides! Bloody and pliable, they could serve as a blanket to muffle the fire.

Shot flopped the wet hide over his fire.

He controlled himself so as not to act suspiciously, but got one of the green, hairy hides he had skinned off that afternoon and with it pretended to fan a contrary blaze. He put on some more twigs and fuel to mislead anyone who might be watching. He glanced hastily around.

Nobody seemed to be paying any attention. This was the busiest hour in the long cook tent. Others were preparing for the meal elsewhere.

Shot flopped the wet hide over his fire. His smoke column stopped, cut off abruptly.

Quickly he jerked the hide off. A black puff floated up.

He flopped the hide on—off and on—off and on—off and on—and off.

Perfect "dots" went upward, drifting just a little in the gentle evening air. He waited two or three minutes and repeated the maneuver, his heart pounding lest he be detected at it. While waiting he tried to appear as busy as possible, swinging his axe at kindling wood.

Whoever made the other signals caught his answer immediately, he soon knew. For that horizon fire showed further puffs or "dots," too, a sure recognition. Then it faded out entirely.

"She's put out her fire to keep from being seen!" Shot guessed. "That's Lorena! Bound to be. She saw me. She must have the field glasses. She's up there sending me encouragement—by lordy, what a girl!"

He wished to goodness he and Lorena had practiced their Indian smoke signals still more that day a week or two ago, so that they might have exchanged definite messages. But no matter. A grand elation had swelled within him. Lorena—what a girl! Maybe she had help lurking in the hills, or maybe she didn't. No matter. He felt that all the bandit soldiers in Christendom couldn't keep him from her now. He didn't know how he could escape, but he would certainly show Senor Escobar some kind of excitement before this night was over.

BUDGET BOARD DELAYS DUE TO SCHOOL CONTEST

The Pickaway County budget commission, comprised of the auditor, prosecutor and treasurer, will delay its annual deliberations until the Muhlenberg Township school district controversy is concluded. Auditor Forrest Short said that the case will probably be submitted as early as possible, but according to Common Pleas court attaches, the Appeals Court does not meet until November 1 in Pickaway County.

The budget commission is ready to go to work on the various appropriation measures as submitted by the various districts, but there is nothing they can do about the tax rates for Muhlenberg and Monroe Township until the district question is settled. The county board of education has ordered the Muhlenberg school district transferred to Monroe, but the Muhlenberg board has gone to court with its appeal.

Other cases pending before the Court of Appeals includes the appeal of the Industrial Commission from a Common Pleas court verdict in favor of Richard Taffe for compensation, a similar case which was decided in favor of Jacob Chilcote, and the case of the State against Carlos Brown, a statutory offense. Brown has been convicted and sentenced to the Ohio penitentiary, but he has carried his fight to a higher court.

GARDEN-GRAPH

Seldom is one fortunate enough to build a home with trees naturally located just where they are desired. Nearly every home owner, therefore, has to plant a tree or trees. This is done more successfully in either the fall or spring of the year. In the fall it should be done immediately after the leaves drop.

Newly planted trees should have special attention and care for several years. As soon as a tree is planted its trunk should be draped with burlap from the ground upto the first limb as shown in the Garden-Graph. This is to prevent sun scald, which can weaken a tree to such an extent as to make it an easy prey for borers. The wrapping should be left on the tree for three summers or until the top foliage has spread sufficiently to safely shade the trunk.

A newly planted tree should also have the additional protection of a four-inch mulch of well-rooted manure. The mulch will help greatly to conserve moisture in the soil beneath the tree. The mulch can be turned under each spring and a new one put on. This should be continued for a number of years until the tree has become well established.

Watering, not merely sprinkling,

is required until the tree has definitely taken hold. During tile weather this is specially important. A drain tile sunk in the ground above the tree's roots can be used to introduce the needed water underground where it can be easily taken up by the tree's roots.

Hitler's Dancer—"Friend" Home

BACK home in Pittsburgh, Miriam Verne, the dancer, who performed seven times for Fuehrer Adolf Hitler in Berlin, says she is "happy to be away from it all." INDIANAPOLIS, LOUISVILLE WIN SECOND IN ROW

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 14—Indianapolis and Louisville advanced closer to the Governor's Cup and the right to meet the winner of the International League play-offs when they took their second straight victories over Kansas City and Minneapolis.

The Indians handed the champion Blues their second set-back by battering five pitchers for 18 hits to take a 12 to 4 decision. Red Barrett allowed the Blues 10 hits, but except for the eighth, when he let in three runs, was never in trouble.

The Colonels edged Minneapolis 9 to 8 in a slugfest featured by five circuit blows. Each squad used three pitchers, with Terry being credited with the win and Tauscher being charged with the loss.

The horse won a $1,000 stake purse at the Indiana State Fair earlier.

BUDGET BOARD DELAYS DUE TO SCHOOL CONTEST

The Pickaway County budget commission, comprised of the auditor, prosecutor and treasurer, will delay its annual deliberations until the Muhlenberg Township school district controversy is concluded. Auditor Forrest Short said that the case will probably be submitted as early as possible, but according to Common Pleas court attaches, the Appeals Court does not meet until November 1 in Pickaway County.

The budget commission is ready to go to work on the various appropriation measures as submitted by the various districts, but there is nothing they can do about the tax rates for Muhlenberg and Monroe Township until the district question is settled. The county board of education has ordered the Muhlenberg school district transferred to Monroe, but the Muhlenberg board has gone to court with its appeal.

Other cases pending before the Court of Appeals includes the appeal of the Industrial Commission from a Common Pleas court verdict in favor of Richard Taffe for compensation, a similar case which was decided in favor of Jacob Chilcote, and the case of the State against Carlos Brown, a statutory offense. Brown has been convicted and sentenced to the Ohio penitentiary, but he has carried his fight to a higher court.

Seldom is one fortunate enough to build a home with trees naturally located just where they are desired. Nearly every home owner, therefore, has to plant a tree or trees. This is done more successfully in either the fall or spring of the year. In the fall it should be done immediately after the leaves drop.

Newly planted trees should have special attention and care for several years. As soon as a tree is planted its trunk should be drapped with burlap from the ground upto the first limb as shown in the Garden-Graph. This is to prevent sun scald, which can weaken a tree to such an extent as to make it an easy prey for borers. The wrapping should be left on the tree for three summers or until the top foliage has spread sufficiently to safely shade the trunk.

A newly planted tree should also have the additional protection of a four-inch mulch of well-rooted manure. The mulch will help greatly to conserve moisture in the soil beneath the tree. The mulch can be turned under each spring and a new one put on. This should be continued for a number of years until the tree has become well established.

Watering, not merely sprinkling,

is required until the tree has definitely taken hold. During tile weather this is specially important. A drain tile sunk in the ground above the tree's roots can be used to introduce the needed water underground where it can be easily taken up by the tree's roots.

CARDS HOPES DWINDLING AS REDS HOLD FIRM

Rhinelanders' Chances For Pennant Gain Brighter As Time Advances

NEW YORK, Sept. 14—The Cardinals are still doggedly trailing the Reds but, to a neutral observer, the St. Louis cause seems rather hopeless.

It is misleading to say the Cards are only 3½ games behind the Reds. Actually, they are not that well off, because they have lost five games more than the Reds, and, as John McGraw used to say, games lost are gone forever but games still unplayed may be won.

The Reds have 24 games to play, the Cards 21. It is hard to believe that the Reds will lose five more games than the Cards between now and the end of the season. Of course, it could happen, but the odds are all against it.

Thompson Does It

Bill McKechnie has been looking for a pitcher to spare the overworked Walters and Derringer and he seemed to have found him yesterday in young Gene Thompson who turned in a gaudy two-hit, 3-0, shutout against the Dodgers and the Dodgers these days are nobody's push-over. It takes real pitching to stop them.

Meanwhile the Cards had to use four pitchers to beat the Phils, 10-9, and would have been sunk except for Joe Medwick's homer that pulled the game out of the fire.

The Giants, who move in on the Reds for a five game series starting today, split a doubleheader with the Pirates. Harry Gumbert came to life with a two-hitter to win the opener, 2-0, but the Pirates evened matters behind Klinger, 7-4.

Bees Fall Apart

The Bees seem to have fallen apart and they proved easy prey for the hustling Cubs who breezed in on the wings of a 19-hit barrage, 15-4.

There was some nice pitching on tap in the American League where the Yanks saw their lead cut to 15 games as they dropped another to the Indians, 9-4, Bob Feller winning his 21st at the expense of Red Ruffing.

Joe DiMaggio finally broke his slump after 14 hitless times at bat with two singles, but is still a few

Bees Fall Apart

The Bees seem to have fallen apart and they proved easy prey for the hustling Cubs who breezed in on the wings of a 19-hit barrage, 15-4.

There was some nice pitching on tap in the American League where the Yanks saw their lead cut to 15 games as they dropped another to the Indians, 9-4, Bob Feller winning his 21st at the expense of Red Ruffing.

Joe DiMaggio finally broke his slump after 14 hitless times at bat with two singles, but is still a few

Opening Lineup Chosen by Black

A starting lineup that will possess experience, well distributed weight, speed and a will to win was nominated Thursday by Coach Roy M. Black as the Tiger grid squad put on the finishing touches for its opener Friday evening against Columbus Holy Rosary.

Black said that his backfield at the start of the game would include Harold Smith at quarterback, Marvin Jenkins and Jim Moorehead at the halves and Bob Bowsher at fullback. This outfit possesses zip with Smith and Jenkins being the speed merchants, weight with Bowsher and Jenkins providing that, and good blocking with Moorehead and Bowsher doing most of the work in this department. Smith and Bowsher are seniors, Jenkins is a junior and Moorehead a sophomore. The latter will be filling Joe Staley's place, the latter being out with an injury.

Line Chosen

At the ends will be Paul Walters and Paul Jackson, both tall athletes with plenty of ability. Walters is a senior and Jackson a sophomore. Harold Hill and Russ Liston will start at tackles the former being a senior and the latter a junior. Both of these boys are rangy and rugged. The guards will include Jim Shea and Clark Martin, both juniors, and Bob Brown will get the nod at the center spot.

Replacements are expected to be made early and often, the Tiger mentor declared, because of the extreme heat and because, he says, there are many boys who should be in the game. "Our replacements are much better for the line and the backfield than they were last year," the coach declard.

Little is known of the Columbus Holy Rosary crew. Seven lettermen are available and the team has a new coach, one of the gridders to invade the Circleville ballwick is named Finneran, and there are many in the city who recall the Don Finneran of a few years back who did a sweet job in the backfield for a pretty good Holy Rosary outfit.

Practice Thursday

The Tiger coach said Thursday that he had decided to have a Thursday afternoon practice instead of one under the lights. "I have much blackboard work for the boys," he said, "and game equipment must be issued. I intend to have all the squad boys in bed early tonight, so I believe the afternoon would be the best time for practice." The coach declared that he feared an after-dark practice would keep the boys up too late.

Game jerseys and other equipment will be issued Thursday afternoon.

The game is scheduled at 8 P. M. Friday and indications are that a capacity crowd will be on hand. Reserved season tickets are going great guns and school officials believe that a sellout is possible for the reserved section. Season tickets entitle holders to the same seat for all games. Adults and students have been separated.

The Red Sox blanked the Tigers, 1-0, as old Lefty Grove made his 14th victory a four-hitter.

The Browns went on a rampage against the A's and won 11-3 while the White Sox, although getting only six hits in each game, took a pair from the Senators, 3-1, in 11 innings, and 4-2 in eight heats. The latter being stopped by darkness.

ADEQUATE FIRE FIGHTING APPARATUS URGED FOR RURAL DISTRICT

TALMER WISE SPONSORS PLAN OF COOPERATION

Township Trustees Of County Will Be Called Into City Conference

SMALL PUMPER DESIRED

Subject Will Be Brought Up For Discussion At Next Council Meeting

A movement through which it is hoped more adequate fire protection may be provided for rural districts in the Circleville community was gaining momentum Thursday with Fire Chief Talmer Wise taking a leading role in the campaign.

Many civic leaders, since the Eshelman mill near-disaster, have declared that something must be done to provide better protection for Circleville,s rural neighbors and at the same time better equip the Circleville department. The campaign started Wednesday by Chief Wise is expected to result in a meeting to be called in the very near future of trustees of all townships surrounding Circleville, the Pickaway County commissioners, Circleville council members and interested citizens.

Pumper Desired

At this meeting the question of purchase of a small pumper by the townships and the county will be discussed, according to Chief Wise. He declared that under a new statute townships are permitted to promote such an undertaking for their protection. "A very suitable pumper could be bought new for as low as $3,500," the chief said, "and this price should not work such a hardship on any of the townships, especially if the county should be able to help. This pumper could be kept in Circleville and it could be available for any rural fire call."

The chief said that the Phillips homestead in Pickaway Township on the site of the extinct village of Jefferson would have been saved had the department been able to answer the first call it received. He scoffed at reports published in out-of-town newspapers that the Eshelman fire prevented the firefighters from making a run to the Phillips residence. The Phillips fire was almost out, Wise said, before the Eshelman alarm was sounded. The city's old pumper that has been used for rural runs broke down last week leaving the city with only one firefighting unit.

Townships Invited

Townships to be invited to the meeting to discuss the purchase of a pumper would probably include Circleville, Washington, Pickaway, Wayne, Jackson and possibly Walnut and Saltcreek although parts of the latter two townships are near Ashville and Laurelville from which points fire aid is available. Wise said that county officials would compile a list of trustees who could be contacted concerning the meeting.

Karl J. Herrmann, Circleville safety director, intends to bring up the subject of more adequate equipment when council meets next Wednesday evening. The director Wednesday ordered four new hose nozzles to replace equipment damaged at the Eshelman fire. He ordered also three pump tanks, which are used to throw water into burning structures. The pump tanks are handled by hand, they hold six gallons of water each and can be filled from wells or any other available sources. Fire Chief Wise said they are very efficient up to 40 feet.

City To Be Cahrted

The chief is considering drafting a chart showing the city's various "danger areas" in case of fire. A system of operation could be worked out so that the water supply could be used to the best advantage. Certain hydrants could be designated for immediate use, while others could be marked for use by any out-of-town unit that might be called into the city in case of a major blaze such as that at Eshelman's. The question of organization in case of a great fire is imperative, the chief said. He may start on his mapping program within the next day or two.

The Ralston-Purina Co., South Court Street, Wednesday started installation of a sprinkler system that will protect the company's mill. The installation is not an aftermath of the Eshelman fire since it has been planned for several months. Equipment had arrived several days ago, Purina officials said.

Ashville Boys Pleased By Fire Engine's Work

By S. D. Fridley
Ashville, Phone 79

The members of the local fire department called to Circleville Tuesday with the engine and equipment to assist in fighting the Eshelman mill blaze, came home all enthused over the performance of their fire engine, it being the only one they said of all the outfits which could play the water on the roof the highest point of the mill. The boys admit that their toy is no fine looker, but "pretty is as pretty does" they say. Along with Ashville's fire chief, William (Bill) Cloud, are eleven assistants: Luther Poling, Russell Hoover, George Kuhlwein, Desmer Spangler, Don Campbell, Floyd Hook, James McNeal, Elwood Morrison, C. W. Fortner, Hoadley Brintlinger, Rancy Petty.

The United Brethren church Brotherhood gave their annual corn roast at the home of Russell Reid the other evening. Electric lights strung about the fine lawn turned night into day and furnished the right setting for a roasting ear, hot dog party, 15 dozen of each making up a part of the menu. Volley ball and horse shoe pitching furnished both fun and exercise for those who cared to have it. Bates Alexander served as chef and did a fine job of it, so the boys told us.

—Ashville—

Both Henry Stump and Lewis Bigelow are reported "some better". . . . .The electric light people brought in a big load of fine poles yesterday for new work in the East Lawn addition. Work is now in progress upon at least four new, modern dwellings.

INDICTMENTS BY GRAND JURY ARE DENIED BY TWO

Two not guilty pleas and one demurrer against an indictment were heard in Judge Meeker Terwilliger's court Wednesday when additional persons cited by the recent grand jury were arraigned.

Ward Cross of Wayne Township entered a denial of charges of driving when intoxicated and posted $200 bond to appear for trial. The trial date was not fixed by the court.

Harry James Davidson of Ashville Route 2 pleaded innocent of burglary and larceny charges in the alleged theft of 720 pounds of corn June 28 from J. M. Borror and Sons of near Ashville. His bond of $500 was also furnished.

Stanley (Pete) Goodman, York Street, through his counsel, filed a demurrer attacking the indictment against him. Goodman was indicted for driving intoxicated.

PRICE OF HOGS SKID; CATTLE REMAIN STEADY

Hog prices skidded, but all other prices were steady Wednesday at the Pickaway County Livestock Cooperation Association's weekly auction. Harry J. Briggs, service manager, said that porkers sold at a $7.85 top, far under the $9.70 peak of a week ago. A general drop in the price for hogs nationally was cited by Mr. Briggs for the drop.

The top price of the day was $11.50 paid by the David Davies Packing Co. of Columbus for a white face steer owned by 4-H Clubber Junior Dresbach. The steer weighed 960 pounds and dressed about 62 percent.

The calf market was extra good, Mr. Briggs said.

U. S. AIR PATROL NEARS GOAL AT PEARL HARBOR

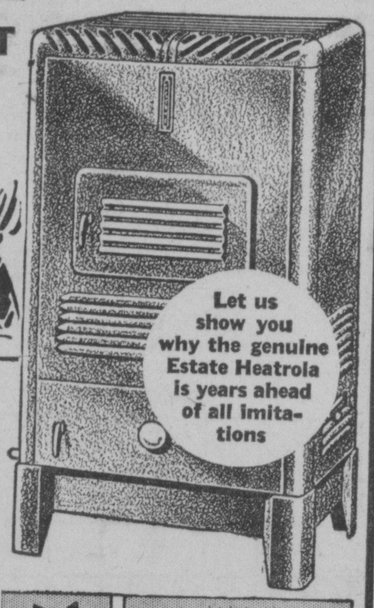

SAN DIEGO, Sept. 14 — Fourteen U. S. Navy bombing patrol planes were believed nearing the halfway point early today on a 2,500-mile hop from San Diego to Pearl Harbor, Hawaii. The planes took off from San Diego Bay shortly after 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, manned by 98 officers and men.

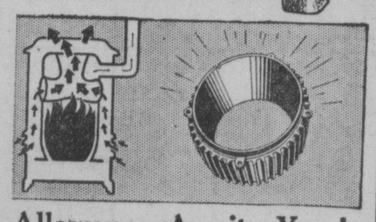

Although no other reason than "routine flight" was given for the flight, it was understood the planes were being sent to the islands to strengthen America's aerial squadron in the Pacific.

TALMER WISE SPONSORS PLAN OF COOPERATION

Township Trustees Of County Will Be Called Into City Conference

SMALL PUMPER DESIRED

Subject Will Be Brought Up For Discussion At Next Council Meeting

A movement through which it is hoped more adequate fire protection may be provided for rural districts in the Circleville community was gaining momentum Thursday with Fire Chief Talmer Wise taking a leading role in the campaign.

Many civic leaders, since the Eshelman mill near-disaster, have declared that something must be done to provide better protection for Circleville,s rural neighbors and at the same time better equip the Circleville department. The campaign started Wednesday by Chief Wise is expected to result in a meeting to be called in the very near future of trustees of all townships surrounding Circleville, the Pickaway County commissioners, Circleville council members and interested citizens.

Pumper Desired

At this meeting the question of purchase of a small pumper by the townships and the county will be discussed, according to Chief Wise. He declared that under a new statute townships are permitted to promote such an undertaking for their protection. "A very suitable pumper could be bought new for as low as $3,500," the chief said, "and this price should not work such a hardship on any of the townships, especially if the county should be able to help. This pumper could be kept in Circleville and it could be available for any rural fire call."

The chief said that the Phillips homestead in Pickaway Township on the site of the extinct village of Jefferson would have been saved had the department been able to answer the first call it received. He scoffed at reports published in out-of-town newspapers that the Eshelman fire prevented the firefighters from making a run to the Phillips residence. The Phillips fire was almost out, Wise said, before the Eshelman alarm was sounded. The city's old pumper that has been used for rural runs broke down last week leaving the city with only one firefighting unit.

Townships Invited

Townships to be invited to the meeting to discuss the purchase of a pumper would probably include Circleville, Washington, Pickaway, Wayne, Jackson and possibly Walnut and Saltcreek although parts of the latter two townships are near Ashville and Laurelville from which points fire aid is available. Wise said that county officials would compile a list of trustees who could be contacted concerning the meeting.

Karl J. Herrmann, Circleville safety director, intends to bring up the subject of more adequate equipment when council meets next Wednesday evening. The director Wednesday ordered four new hose nozzles to replace equipment damaged at the Eshelman fire. He ordered also three pump tanks, which are used to throw water into burning structures. The pump tanks are handled by hand, they hold six gallons of water each and can be filled from wells or any other available sources. Fire Chief Wise said they are very efficient up to 40 feet.

City To Be Cahrted

The chief is considering drafting a chart showing the city's various "danger areas" in case of fire. A system of operation could be worked out so that the water supply could be used to the best advantage. Certain hydrants could be designated for immediate use, while others could be marked for use by any out-of-town unit that might be called into the city in case of a major blaze such as that at Eshelman's. The question of organization in case of a great fire is imperative, the chief said. He may start on his mapping program within the next day or two.

The Ralston-Purina Co., South Court Street, Wednesday started installation of a sprinkler system that will protect the company's mill. The installation is not an aftermath of the Eshelman fire since it has been planned for several months. Equipment had arrived several days ago, Purina officials said.

Back From Europe

ROBERT Montgomery, Jr., 3, and his sister, Elizabeth, 6, children of the screen star, arrive in New York aboard the Arandora Star after flight from warring Europe. They were accompanied by a nurse. The British liner altered course nine times during crossing as Admiralty radioed warnings of submarines.

Ashville Boys Pleased By Fire Engine's Work

By S. D. Fridley
Ashville, Phone 79

The members of the local fire department called to Circleville Tuesday with the engine and equipment to assist in fighting the Eshelman mill blaze, came home all enthused over the performance of their fire engine, it being the only one they said of all the outfits which could play the water on the roof the highest point of the mill. The boys admit that their toy is no fine looker, but "pretty is as pretty does" they say. Along with Ashville's fire chief, William (Bill) Cloud, are eleven assistants: Luther Poling, Russell Hoover, George Kuhlwein, Desmer Spangler, Don Campbell, Floyd Hook, James McNeal, Elwood Morrison, C. W. Fortner, Hoadley Brintlinger, Rancy Petty.

The "new-old pastor of the local Methodist church was returned home from Delaware where he attended the annual conference for the past week. The conference is to be congratulated upon its good judgment in returning Reverend Peters to the local church and community. All are pleased to know that he and his family will be with us for at least another year.

Dad Kauber (Al) is a member of the Ashville Hi school faculty. . . . .The local school board was in session Tuesday evening, transacting no business, a member told us, except the paying of bills, which are always plentiful at the beginning of the new school year. . . . .Hayes Oday and family are removing from their home near the U. The United Brethren church Brotherhood gave their annual corn roast at the home of Russell Reid the other evening. Electric lights strung about the fine lawn turned night into day and furnished the right setting for a roasting ear, hot dog party, 15 dozen of each making up a part of the menu. Volley ball and horse shoe pitching furnished both fun and exercise for those who cared to have it. Bates Alexander served as chef and did a fine job of it, so the boys told us.

—Ashville—

Both Henry Stump and Lewis Bigelow are reported "some better". . . . .The electric light people brought in a big load of fine poles yesterday for new work in the East Lawn addition. Work is now in progress upon at least four new, modern dwellings.

Dick Peters, one of our three civil engineers, including M. C. Chamberlain and Frank Baum, Chamberlain at Columbus and Baum at the county engineers office is now over at Bainbridge making a preliminary survey toward the installation of a sewer system. The Corn Canners Service Bureau, a national organization of which James I. Smith, Jr., is president, will participate in the National Farm and Home Hour radio program over NBC stations Friday from 11:30 A. M. to noon. The Sweet Corn Sweetheart, chosen in a recent national contest, will be introduced and there will be a discussion of the organization and its purposes. The program will originate in Chicago.

INDICTMENTS BY GRAND JURY ARE DENIED BY TWO

Two not guilty pleas and one demurrer against an indictment were heard in Judge Meeker Terwilliger's court Wednesday when additional persons cited by the recent grand jury were arraigned.

Ward Cross of Wayne Township entered a denial of charges of driving when intoxicated and posted $200 bond to appear for trial. The trial date was not fixed by the court.

Harry James Davidson of Ashville Route 2 pleaded innocent of burglary and larceny charges in the alleged theft of 720 pounds of corn June 28 from J. M. Borror and Sons of near Ashville. His bond of $500 was also furnished.

Stanley (Pete) Goodman, York Street, through his counsel, filed a demurrer attacking the indictment against him. Goodman was indicted for driving intoxicated.

PRICE OF HOGS SKID; CATTLE REMAIN STEADY

Hog prices skidded, but all other prices were steady Wednesday at the Pickaway County Livestock Cooperation Association's weekly auction. Harry J. Briggs, service manager, said that porkers sold at a $7.85 top, far under the $9.70 peak of a week ago. A general drop in the price for hogs nationally was cited by Mr. Briggs for the drop.

The top price of the day was $11.50 paid by the David Davies Packing Co. of Columbus for a white face steer owned by 4-H Clubber Junior Dresbach. The steer weighed 960 pounds and dressed about 62 percent.

The calf market was extra good, Mr. Briggs said.

U. S. AIR PATROL NEARS GOAL AT PEARL HARBOR

SAN DIEGO, Sept. 14 — Fourteen U. S. Navy bombing patrol planes were believed nearing the halfway point early today on a 2,500-mile hop from San Diego to Pearl Harbor, Hawaii. The planes took off from San Diego Bay shortly after 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, manned by 98 officers and men.

Although no other reason than "routine flight" was given for the flight, it was understood the planes were being sent to the islands to strengthen America's aerial squadron in the Pacific.
